GOLDEN MEMORIES.

BY HENRY B. LIVINGSTON.

Within this Hall are met again, Friends thro' the weary years long parted; The brave and high souled worthy men, Of early days-the lion hearted:

Who swung the pick, and from the soil, Wrung untold wealth of golden treasures. And round the camp fire's blazing light Told tales of old time scenes and pleasures.

How thin the ranks of comrades olden; me rest by Mississippi's flow. Far from the land so fair and golden; But those who have survived the waves. Of time and tempest, still remember With falthful hearts their honored graves

From June's soft air to keen December.

How chang'd is all since then, and oh!

Where mountain trail and mule path ran, The fron horse goes madly prancing. And railroad bridges arches span Where bark canoes were lightly dancing; Where solitude was wont to rule, All now is bustle and commotion.

With mill, and meeting-house and school And every other Yankee notion The times are changed, but still the same

In heart are we who tolled together, In '49, and yet move on Fast friends in fair and gloomy weather; The memories of the pust are dear. To old time friends of well loved places, How warm each heart ingreeting here Their well remembered, cordial faces.

And Father Time has gently tonehed As fied the years our band fraternal, No angry gust has marred the flow Of his swift stream, and lapse eternal; Still gently touch us, Father Time, As toward the final borne you bear us; And whatsoe'r you take away, The memories of those old days spare us.

CULLINGS.

"Mikado" note paper, highly colored, is the "latest thing out," excepting the man with the night key.

A great majority of the heroines of novels are said to be blondes. This is all very proper. Novels are always light reading.

A fashionable Brooklyn belle has scandalized society by receiving the attentions of a negro. She should be apprehended for encouraging blackmail.

The rage now in Paris is to be married at midnight. This is a wise move. It accustoms the bride to waiting up, until midnight for her husband's return.

The latest notion among fashionable ladies is to wear silk stockings embroidered with pansies and butterflies. This is a pretty conceit and we hope to see more of it.

It is a singular and touching coincidence that both poker-players and women raise the blind for the same purpose. They want to see what their neighbors have got.

"Say, Prof," said a Frenchman to the lecturer, "what makes a fellow's heart sink when he's in trouble?"

"The gravity of the situation of course," was the eloquent rejoin-

A religious weekly says: "The man who whistles hardly ever swears." It is different with the man who hears him. The latter hardly ever does anything else at such times.

*Secretary Bayard has grown very deaf within a few months. And so, by the way, has President Cleveland. Anyhow, many office seekers complain that he turns a deaf ear to their appeals.

Japanese etiquette requires visitors to remain at the places they are visiting until told to leave. A good many visiting acquaintances in this country seem to be trying to make that the custom here.

"A million dollars brings more misery than happiness to a man," says a writer. Perhaps it does, but if the writer has a million dollars to spare, we are willing to run the risk of being made miserable for the rest of our mundane existence.

A young gentleman being introduced to a young lady a few evenings since, after a rather lengthy conversation with her said on his departure: "Good evening, ma'am; I hope to have the pleasure of meeting you again some time in the near future," when she replied: "Yes, I hope so, thank you-in heaven."

De Baggs-"I hear that the famous case of Biggs versus Riggs has finally been decided," Lawyer Grabb-"Yes, judgment was rendered this morning for the defendant after ten years' litigation." "I heard the defendant say that the amount involved-nearly ninety thousand dollars-every cent has been lost during the trial. Is that so?" "Lost? No, sir. The plaintiff's attorney got about thirty thousand of it, and I have the rest. Not a dollar was lost.
